The Court admonishes the offender for these violations, but will not revoke his term of supervised release at this time. Upon recommendation of the U.S. Probation Officer and as agreed to by the offender, the supervised release conditions imposed on January 10, 1992, are modified as follows:

2. "The defendant shall be placed in Home Confinement for a period of three (3) months, to commence immediately upon release from imprisonment. During this time, the defendant shall remain at his/her place of residence, except for treatment, employment or other activities approved in advance by the probation officer. The defendant shall maintain a telephone at his/her place of residence without any special features, modems, answering machines, or cordless telephones during the term of electronic monitoring. The defendant shall wear an electronic device and shall observe the rules specified by the probation office. The defendant is to contribute to the cost of the Electronic Monitoring Device. He/she shall not leave the judicial district to which he/she is sentenced or released during the term of electronic monitoring.”

4. The defendant shall submit his person, residence, office or vehicle to a search, conducted by a United States Probation Officer at a reasonable time and in a reasonable manner, based upon reasonable suspicion of contraband or evidence of a violation of a condition of release; failure to submit to a search may be grounds for revocation; the defendant shall warn any other residents that the premises may be subject to searches pursuant to this condition.
